Freeman ranked top 15 in finance

March 26, 2009

The Freeman School has been named one of the top 15 graduate business schools in finance by the Princeton Review. The ranking, based on a survey of MBA students, appears in the April 2009 issue of Entrepreneur magazine.

The Princeton Review contacted 19,000 MBA students attending 296 business schools to compile its "Student Opinion Honors for Business Schools" in six core areas: finance, accounting, general management, global management, marketing and operations. The top 15 schools in each category according to the MBAs are listed alphabetically and are not ranked from one to 15.

For more information about the survey and the lists, visit entrepreneur.com/topcolleges.