Freeman Speaker Series presents Jackie Hanselman

August 28, 2009

was established to develop talent to meet existing needs in K-12 education while building the field of leaders to close the talent gap and transform urban education. On Wednesday, Sept. 16, Jackie Hanselman, recruiting manager with the organization, will discuss "The Business of Education."

The presentation will take place in Goldring/Woldenberg Hall II, Room 1111, from 5-6 p.m.

The Freeman Speaker Series was established to showcase a broad cross-section of business professionals who can speak about their industries, companies and professional activities in a meaningful and intellectual challenging manner. Each lecture is co-sponsored by the Career Management Center and a student organization, and each is followed by a brief reception. Interested faculty, staff and alumni are invited to attend each Freeman Speaker Series event. Business attire is requested.
