

Financial Times: Programme with a 'buy' rating

May 24, 2010

From Financial Times, May 24, 2010:

In Latin America, financial research on public companies can be difficult to find. Not only are many of the financial markets underdeveloped and thinly traded, there is a dearth of analysts in the region because most big investment banks do not bother to cover small, emerging market companies. But business schools there have set out to change this. A dozen schools have signed on to a programme in conjunction with Tulane's Freeman School of Business where MBAs research, write and publish investment reports on small- and medium-sized enterprises in the region.

To read the full article, visit FT.com:

<http://www.ft.com/cms/s/0/d83603ea-66ca-11df-aeb1-00144feab49a.html>